Men's Club To Get Smog Control Story From CHP

Smog control will be the topic of the first of the year meeting of the Lemon Grove Men's Club, according to John Bridger, program chairman.

The discussion will be held by one of the officers who will enforce the use of the devices.

The speaker will be California Highway Patrolman John Annis, a Lemon Grove resident, who said that while the smog control law became effective this week on Thursday for commercial vehicles, that a conditioning period will be permitted until April 1. At that time the Patrol will commence enforcement.

Officer Annis said he will explain at the club how the new program works. He said that most new car dealers and many gasoline filling stations in this area have been licensed to install the devices.

"No one style has been assessed as being superior but several styles have been OK'd for immediate intallation," he said. "Only approved devices may be installed," he added.

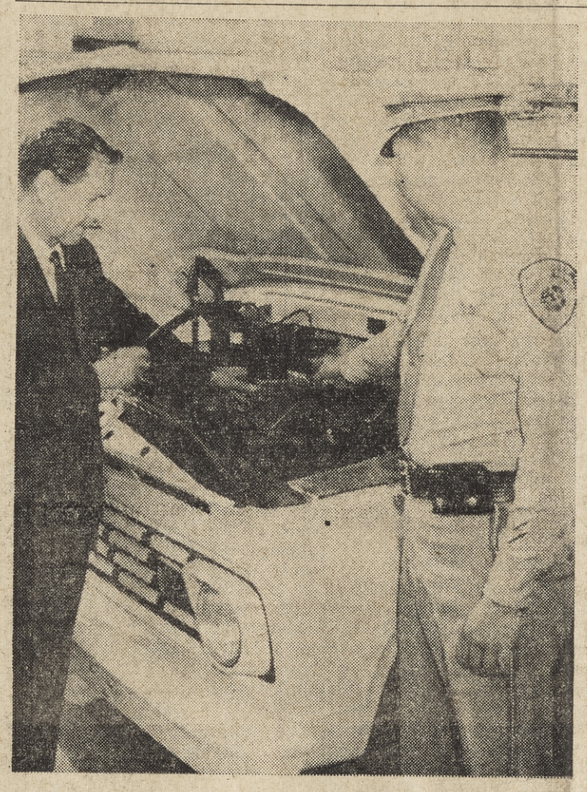

At present, only commercia' vehicles are required to have them, he said. Each month, one tenth of the commercial vihicles in the state become liable for installation. The last digit on the license plate is the key to the month in which the vehicle should be control equipped, he said.

Beginning in 1965, non-commercial vehicles will be required to have the equipment installed.

Not required to submit to the new state smog control law are all vehicles manufactured prior to 1950; most foreign vehicles, motorcycles and motor-driven cycles.

A list of local installation stations is not available at present because the licensing is done from Sacramento and most applicants have not received their permits.

The Highway Patrol office at 283-6331 can give the name of the nearest station.

SMOG CONTROL — Smog control devices are mandatory on commercial vehicles this year. Passenger cars must install them next year.
Average installation price will be $12 to $18 for most cars, Grace said.
Commercial vehicles will be checked in the month represented by the last digit on the license plate. Example: License plates ending in "1" will have devices in installed in January. "6" will b a June installation. Officer Annis will outline the smog control device program Frinday noon at the Men's Club meeting at Michael's.

D&B Shows Area Growth

Listings in the Reference Book of Dun and Bradstreet show Spring Valley and Lemon Grove with large increases in business totals over a five year period according to the firm's reporting department.

Spring Valley, with one of the largest increases in San Diego county, is shown with a 119.7 per cent increase. There are 134 listings in 1964 compared with 61 in 1959.

Lemon Grove is shown with 192 against 180 in 1959 for a gain of 6.7.

As a comparison El Cajon increased from 480 to 556 for 16.3 per cent. La Mesa increased from 284 to 353 for 24.2 per cent. Shopping centers contributed to La Mesa's high percentage, it is believed.

The county as a whole is up nine per cent from 9,442 listings to 10,288.

The D&B Reference Book lists those manufacturers wholesalers and retailers who seek and grant commercial credit, but does not include some of the service and professional businesses such as beauty and barber shops, security dealers, or real estate brokers.

Reports include a history of the business (who owns it, who runs it, and how long it has been operating); a description of what the business does and how it does it; a financial section which usually includes the latest financial statement; and a record of how the business pays its bills.

While credit reports are primarily used by businessmen who want to evaluate the credit risk of a business before shipping or selling, insurance underwriters also use credit reports to review risks, rates and coverage for fire and other types of insurance, D&B said.

1911 Act Seen For L.G. Park Drainage Relief

SAN DIEGO (CNS) — The county is willing to go to work on the drainage problem around the Lemon Grove Park, but it will take a cooperative project by all of the area property owners contributing to the problem.

This was the finding Tuesday of the Board of Supervisors after a study by the Department of Special District Services.

Warren A. Barney, director of special district services, advised the supervisors that the county was responsible for 7.2 acres of the 26 acres that create the drainage problem.

Carl Panhorst, of 2270 Washington, had headed a petition asking the county to help solve the problem.

Barney said it would cost about $5,000 to relieve the drainage problem, exclusive of right-of-way costs. He said he did not believe right-of-way should be a factor.

He suggested the formation of a 1911 Improvement Act District to pay for the drainage facilities. Bonds to finance the project would be sold and repaid by the owners of property receiving benefit. Barney said the assessment would probably be on an indirect and direct basis with those receiving an indirect benefit (that is contributing to the drainage problem) would be assessed on an acreage bais and those receiving a direct benefit would also be assessed on a front footage basis. These details, however, would have to be worked out at a later time, he said.

In this way, the county would contribute about 28 per cent of the cost.

Gardner To Operate S.V. Park District

SAN DIEGO (CNS) — The County Board of Supervisors Tuesday set up an administrative system for the Spring Valley Recreation and Park District and placed Cletus W. Gardner, county parks director, in charge of its affairs.

The supervisors approved in principle a contract between the newly-formed district and the county for the purpose of providing both administrative and recreational services.

Gardnes has proposed the arrangement as a necessary first step before a revolving fund was set up to handle donations to the district.

The district received a $250 donation from the Avondale School PTA shortly after it was formed, but no machinery for its acceptance has been set up yet. The donation has been held in a trust fund until now.

When the district was formed, donations of property were promised to help provide recreation areas. This agreement would help in handling such donations as these, too, according to Gardner.

The supervisors also act as the directors of the recreation district, but they work closely with a local advisory committee which is headed by Frank Mosher, a local teacher.

The district, which was formed by a vote in September, is the first recreation and park district ever formed in San Diego County.

Sand, Poured In Crankcase, Damaged Heavy Equipment

No estimate of the amount of the damage was given.

The equipment was located in Spring Valley near Jamacha blvd.

Addditional equipment at the same place was left. He named a suspect.

Naval Repair Facility Could Produce Jobs and Money As Free Enterprise

The closing of the Naval Repair Facility could have been a boon to San Diego if the Administration hadn't ridden roughshod into its decision instead of thinking it out.

President Johnson and his new Secretary of the Navy, Paul Nitze, had everything going for them when they announced that it would be more economical to have the repair work done by private enterprise than by governmental organizations.

Not only is that true of ship repair, but it is equally true of all the other businesses operated by government — the government which was formed to perform only those services which the people are unable to perform for themselves.

The activities of the repair station could have been sold to private industry as a going business and such a proposal was made by National Steel and Ship Building of San Diego.

The Administration could have sold the business with the understanding that personnel would be transferred to the buyer. This would have averted the disjointing of many families here, families who will be transferred to other parts of the country if they do not want to seek other employment here.

The advantages of the government selling the facility as a business opportunity are easily seen. The government would be paid for relinquishing the business to the firm buying it; by its own admission, the government would be getting the work done more economically; the privately operated firm would pay to the federal government taxes on profits, which is not presently being paid. and finally, several hundred people would be taken off the federal payroll and put on the payroll of private industry.

Then, if the Johnson Administration is as sincere about its concern regarding the high level of federal employment, it would transfer to private enterprise, on a bid basis, some of the facilities and businesses it operates, to bring federal income a little closer to federal outgo.

Government 'Assistance' Puts California Rancher Out of Business

Does government "assistance" always help?

There are many who prefer independence and hardship to having minions of the government breathing down their necks.

Such was the cast recently when it was reported that a prominent California rancher closed up shop rather than to suffer the pains of increased government intervention, uncertain labor supplies brought on by governmental action, and rising production costs.

Christian Science Service Stresses Reliance on God

Man's dependence on God will be emphasized at all Christian Science services this Sunday.

The theme will be taken up in accompanying readings from the Christian Science textbook, including these lines: No "wisdom is wise but His wisdom; no truth is true, no love is lovely, no life is life but the divine; no good is, but the good God bestows" (Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures by Mary Baker Eddy, p. 275.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Dear Editor:

It is my wish that you publish the enclosed letter so that others who may want to do something about this sorry situation may have a guide.

Congressman Van Deerlin:

I would like to say that this is the first letter that I have written to a representative in Washington regarding pending legislation but I, like many others with whom I have talked, feel rather strongly about the pending law which would authorize the sale of wheat and agricultural products to Russia and other Communist and Communistic controlled governments and the proposed amendment which would authorize the President to insure payment of the purchase price of the wheat and other agricultural products by a government agency.

In the first place, our government has for a long period of time attempted to prevent and persuade other countries from trading with Russian and other Communist controlled countries and we are now following the same pattern as other countries whose practices in dealing with the Communist countries were condemned by our government. If the Russian people were actually starving it would be a different matter but there has been no report that the Communists are actually suffering from lack of food.

Loans Insured

As to extending the credit of the United States Goverment for those sales of wheat and other agricultural products and actually insuring payment of loans made to Russia for this purpose, it seems to me that we are going too far because in the first place, as you probably well know, Russia has a very poor credit rating as shown by the fact that they still owe us many billions of dollars for which they became obligated and agreed to pay during World War II. In the event Russia fails to pay for these agricultural products, it is money that has been paid to the United States Government by the people (taxpayers) which will have to be paid by our government for these purchases which I do not believe should be done.

It is my belief that some of our representatives in government in Washington have forgotten the fact that all monies which are used by our government are paid by taxpayers and citizens of the United States.

Too Much Pressure

I further do not believe that President Johnson should have put so much pressuse on both the Senate and House of Representatives in order to defeat the proposed amendment to the bill authorizing the sale of agricultural products, especially in view of the fact that the House of Representatives twice by vote agreed that the amendment should remain a part of the bill and that the government should not be authorized to grant credit to Soviet Russia or guarantee payment of the purchase price of the products sold. It is my understanding that when our type of government was first formed, the House of Representatives was considered to be more representative of the local people than the Senate and I believe that this is indicated by the way they voted on the amendment because perhaps they pay more attention to the feeling of their constituents than the Senate.

I am sure that this letter will have no effect on the outcome of this bill or the amendment because the vote clearly will be upon party lines but it seems to me that in something like this which is extremely important, at least to the ordinary person, that great consideration should be given to the question as to whether or not this bill is to the best interest of our country and to the ordinary citizens and taxpayers who will have to pay the bill for these agricultural products to be sold to Russia.

Very truly your,
Frank Armstrong

Dear Editor:

Congradulations to you and your excellent staff on the unique and highly appropriate front page text and make-up of December 26, 1963.

With the world in turmoil, people need to be constantly reminded that there is religious and historical significance to the Christmas season. Frantic shopping and nightly parties do not properly honour the birth of Christ.

You have done something this Christmas that most of the publishers throughout the nation just don't have the "guts" to do.

We at United Community services Fund headquarters have admired your splendid efforts and sincerely hope that this particular issue of your newspaper finds its way to the right person or persons for a well-deserved recognition.

Again, congradulations! and again, thanks for all your fine help to UCS Fund activities.

Merry Christmas and
A Happy New Year

District High School Teachers Voted $300-$600 A Year Raises

Teachers in the Grossmont High School District were voted $302 to $600 a year raises last week. The raises are retroactive to September 1.

Requested by the district Teachers Association and endorsed by district Superintendent Lewis F. Smith, the board voted 4-1 to give the raise a mounting to 5.6 per cent. The present pay scale is from $5,400 for beginning teachers to $10,000 for a teacher with a doctor's degree and 14 years' experience.

Smith said the district's high level of teacher morale and quality of education for its 14,000 students were in danger of slipping if teacher pay were not brought into line with comparable districts throughout the state.

The district for many years has ranked among the top ten per cent of California school systems, mith said, commenting that failure to grant the raise would endanger Grossmont's recruiting chances for next year. He was by Dr. John T. Warburton, his assistant in charge of instruction.

Robert T. Dryden, Manager of the U.S. National Bank Branch in Lemon Grove voted against the raise. He said a board majority had agreed in August to raise salaries 2.75 per cent and then close discussion of the subject for the rest of this school year.

Rexford Hall of El Cajon, board president, who had voted with Dryden in August, said he now agreed with Smith.

The raise will be financed from a federal aid grant which was announced last week.

The new salary schedule calling for beginners scale at $5702 to $11,400 for the maximum compares with a request from the American Federation of Teachers for a $6,000 -to-$12,000 range which was presented to the board last month. Trustees took no action on the AFT request.

William T. Melton, President of the district Classified Employees Association, was assured that raises for non-teaching personnel will be studied at a meeting next month.

District officials said the raises for certificated personnel will cost $270,766 a year. The federal allocation totaled more than $287,000 sport coat and wallet from his car. The car was parked in the high school parking lot. The wallet contained $17 in cash and a check for $25. The value of the jacket made up the difference, he said.

Strikes Twice

A polygraph test has been asked for employes of the L.G. Florist 7965 Broadway after money had been stolen from the firm for the second time this year.

Ann Kiss, the firm's proprietor, said that $280 had been taken prior to Christmas week. $48 left in the cash register and $220 left in an unlocked cash box atop a desk in the rear of the shop was taken during the night of Dec. 21.

A burglary was sustained by the firm in May, police reported.

VLM Family Dented For $43

Helen Forbes of 4244 Blackton dr., Vista La Mesa, told police that two men, apparently of Mexican descent, offered to repair dents in two cars belonging to the family after explaining that they were professional repairmen in need of temporary extra work.

Some of the dents were dinged out, she reported, and a black, sooty material smeared where dents were. The men collected $43 and left, stating that they would be back to finish the job after the black material dried.

The men never returned and the black stuff washed off easily with water.

Tire Slashed

The tire on the car owned by Clive Willis, 703 Clamath st., La Presa, was flat when he examined it Christmas morning. Someone had put a 5-inch slash in the tire during the night.

Park Property Damaged

A gang of boys were observed tearing down a 2-year old tree in Lemon Grove's Greenspot park last week. They also broke a score of Christmas tree lights which they had brought with them.

The observer was a passerby who reported the acts to the sheriff's department.

Loses TV Mast

Someone took the television mast assembly from the roof of the house occupied by John F. Cady, of 10305 Elmdale dr., Spring Valley, Saturday night.

The mast was a $75 rotary installation and is disappeared Saturday while the Cady's were visiting friends in S. Spring Valley.

The DIMMER VIEW

Solano County rancher, called it quits, auctioned off his $90,000 worth of tools and equipment and closed up the 900 acres he has been farming for the past 18 years.

Lider told the Council of California Growers that even if the bracero program is extended a year, it will not meet his long-range needs for supplemental labor in tomato and sugar beets crops.

Lider reported that tomatoes and beets have the highest labor requirement and a possible one-year extension of the bracero program would not allow for future planning. Land leases for farming are for two to fice year periods and a one year extension made planning impossible, he said.

In addition to tomatoes and beets, Lider also had been growing barley, milo, dry beans and alfalfa seed. The crops were planted on a four year rotation program to maintain the ground in the best possible condition.

"Tomatoes and sugar beets are the only crops of the group that offer any reasonable return" Lider explained. "The rest merely are existence crops designed to condition the ground for the other two."

He added that U.S. Government pressure upon growers dependent on the bracero program has had the double effect of increasing costs while lowering production.

"The requirement of a guaranteed minimum wage under price rates has encouraged lower production with a corresponding higher cost to the grower," Lider charged. "At the same time other costs have been going up. Water in this area now costs three times as much as it did when I started. Taxes, and the costs of machinery, fertilizers and everything else, have risen faster than the price for my crops."

Lider's equipment and tools were sold at auction on November 7.

"It was hard to turn my back on an operation which I had been building for half my life," he explained, "but I could see no future in continuing to farm under conditions which require that I subject myself constantly to the whims and prejudices of Washington bureaucrats . . ."

The Plight of the Square

In the current issue of MODERN LIVING, a publication issued regularly by S.D. Federal Savings and Loan Association, an article caught our eye and mind. With appreciation offered to John Thompson, Jr., SDF's president, we are reprinting a major part of it.

The article was produced by C. H. Brower and the words are mighty meaningful to most of us. Pointing out that the Historian Arnold Toynbee says that of 21 notable civilizations, 19 perished from the evaporation of belief from within rather than from external conquest, he adds:

"The word 'square', in Mark Twain's day, was one of the finest words in our language.

"You gave a man a square deal if you were honest... And you gave him a square meal when he was hungry... When you got out of debt you were square with the world... And that was when you could look your fellow man square in the eye.

"Then a lot of strange characters got hold of this honest word, bent it out of shape, and gave it back to our youngsters.

"Now everyone knows what a Square is.

"He is the man who never learned to get away with it. A Joe who volunteers when he doesn't have to. A boob who gets so lost in his work that he has to be reminded to go home. A guy who gets his kicks from trying to do something better than anyone else can. A character who doesn't have to spend his evenings puttering in a basement workshop and his weekends scraping the bottom of a boat because he's putting all that elbow grease and steam into doing a satisfying job on the job he's getting paid to do. A fellow who laughs with his belly instead of his upper lip. A slob who still gets chocked up when the band plays 'America, the Beautiful'. A Square strictly from Squaresville.

"He and the rest of us are living in a country today that is quite different from the one that we were taught to love. Parents have successfully defended in court their children's right to ignore the flag salute. Faculties and student bodies have found it distasteful to publicly take an oath of loyalty to their country.

"And the United States Military Academy has found it necessary to place a sign beside its parade grounds at West Point reminding spectators that it is customary for men to remove their hats at the passing of the banner that was once unashamedly referred to as Old Glory.

The force of government is now directed more fully toward the security of the weak than the encouragement of the strong.

"The U. S. was once the greatest exporter of ideas the world had ever known. We created and sold abroad the idea of individual dignity, responsibility and freedom. We created and sold the idea of government of the people, by the people and for the people . . . an idea that is still being bought today.

"It is hard to find a basic idea that America during the last fifty years has exported. From our most mortal enemy we have bought the idea of a strong government for weak people We have bought aboard the ideas of 'Let Jack do it,' 'What's in it for me?' and the gesture of the neatly shrugged shoulder.

"But, most of all, we have been gullible patrons of the export firm of Sigmund Freud, who has sold us the idea that all men are born feeble, that we should abandon our ancient disciplines as too stark for the poor souls that we are, and to seek our salvation through group support. Freud's discorvery that man was not adjusted to his world, and could never be truly adjusted, justified the lazy cynic and condemned the square. For if you can't win, what is the use of trying? And here was the first great authority who said you cannot win.

"It is not funny that today our colleges are loaded with youngsters who are hardly prepared for high school . . . kids who cannot do simple arithmetic and who cannot spell simple words. This, too, was an import . . . the idea that the dull discipline of the three R's was disturbing to little Johnny's ego. So we got real scientific and went to work on the Poor Little Kid and his Id, with the result that today hardly any school that really is a school is without a class in remedial reading.

"And what, by the way, ever happened to laughter? Once we were a laughing nation. We laughed easily and deeply. The corn may have been as high as an elephant's eye . . . but we laughed, and it was good for us. We laughed at Lincoln, and Mark Twain. We laughed at Will Rogers, because he made us laugh at ourselves

"We refer to our humor as sick, sick, sick and it is, is, is.

"Mother used to get cards on Mother's Day, expressing in some way the fact that she was loved and wanted. Now if she is lucky she gets a card that show Whistler's mother flat on her back and a caption that reads, You're not the only one who's off her rocker.

"Maybe cutting down a cherry tree is a square thing to do . . .and maybe throwing a dollar across the Rappahannock is a waste of money rather than a test of strength . . . and maybe nobody stands up in boats any more . . . but there are lessons to be learned in all of them, and schoolbooks are for learning.

"Maybe these aggressive and nationalistic statements went the way of contact games, which have been largely abandoned on our school ground. Maybe the educators thought out children would be more interested in Peter Rabbit, who goes hippety-hop. Maybe the Russians are a lot smarter than we think.

"Or maybe it is just because these fellows, and all of their fellows, and all their ideas, are square!

Study Fields Listed In College Survey

Business, liberal arts and humanities majors account for more than half of the students who registered at Grossmont College last fall, a survey has revealed.

Dean of Admissions and Guidance, Laurance Coons, listed the following enrollments in the other college curricula:

Agriculture, horticulture and forestry, 19; engineering, 138; health, physical education, recreation and safety, 120; natural sciences and mathematics, 326; social science, 269; trade and technical occupational training, 126; liberal assisting, 6; and police science, 79.

Another area of the survey revealed that 782 students who withdrew from the college during 1962-63 did so for other than grade point average deficiency.

STATE GOP OFFICIAL QUITS

Robert Rowan, of Los Angeles, treasurer of the State Republican Central Committee resigned Monday to take over the sponsorship of Governor Nelson A. Rockefeller for President.

His resignation, he said, follows ". . . a well established tradition that party officials should not become publicly involved in primary election battles."

Construction of Oro Dam Provides Vast Show for Sidewalk Superintendents

by William E. Warne

(This is the first of a series of six articles on California water development by the Director of the California State Department of Water Resources, who has administered resources development programs for state, federal and international government since 1935.)

SACRAMENTO — Near the mouth of the Reather River Canyon by Oroville, Calif., one of the great dams of the world is being built.

The business of putting together a work of the size and complexity of Oroville Dam, drawing together the highest of our building skills and the most advanced construction equipment, is intensely exciting. Not only those of the construction forces and in the designing rooms, but everyone is touched with this excitement.

On the canyon wall, the Department of Water Resources has provided a Visitors' House with a sweeping view of the construction. This is proving a Mecca for sidewalk superintendents from all over the state and from afar. Three hundred thousand visited the construction overlook from April through November, 1963. During the peak month so far it drew 48,000; the peak day total was 4,704.

The people of California identify the key feature of the State Water Project as their dam, even as they have other great public works in the past. I had occasion to note this attitude on June 17. 1950, when I spoke in dedication of the great Shasta Dam of the Central Valley Project on the Sacramento River, while I was Assistant Secretary of the Interior.

"No one man and no agency," I said on that occasion, "can claim Shasta Dam exclusively as his own. It is the fruit of the dreams and work of millions. So let it stand here for hundreds—dare we hope thousands—of years serving the people.

"To future generations we give it as a symbol of the toil, the hope, and the aspirations of the ordinary citizen of our Twentieth Century. He has found a way in our democracy to join a cooperation with his fellowman, and through his government — local, state and national — to do his great works and to reap the full measure of the fruit of the earth."

Oroville Dam is being built with the same cooperation, under sponsorship of the State rather than the United States, as was Shasta Dam, but no less a product of the great drive of the Twentieth Century toward the conquering by the common man of his environment to produce a better life.

Dams and their related power and water works mark the era emphatically in Western United States, but in our country as well, which may well be known in the distant future as the "Day of the Dam".

Perculiarly, in the United States the subjugation of the rivers has gone hand in hand with the advance of conservation of resources and the national economic development. I noted the American innovation in irrigation in 1951, in an article used by the Northwestern University in its Centennial Academic Conference on population and resources, as follows:

"American irrigation has been based increasingly on the policy of putting water aside in one year for use during the later year. Where Joseph stored the mature grain for the lean seven years in Egypt's history, we store water in reservoirs behind dams to fatten the lean years themselves."

The State Water Project, of which the Oroville Dam is so important a part, will serve agriculture through irrigation, but even a greater portion of its conserved waters will go for industrial and domestic use in cities, some of them hundreds of miles from the reservoir.

This shift of emphasis illustrates the advancing development of California. Agriculture has continued to flourish in our State. California consistently for years has outstripped all other states in the value of its farm products, with recent totals well above three billions of dollars a year.

The number of acres irrigated in California has continued to expand and is now approaching 9,000,000. But population growth, urbanization and industrial development have advanced at even more rapid rates.

The State Water Project was approved by the Legislature in 1959, endorsed by the people at the general election in 1960, fully launched into the construction stage in 1961, and is now advancing.

To date $54,244,000 of construction has been completed and contracts valued at $334,801,000 have been let and are under way. The construction program is aimed at delivering water to Perris Reservoir in Riverside County in 1972. It is on schedule.

The construction completed includes Frenchman Dam upstream from Oroville, the relocation around the Oroville Dam of Highway 40-A and the Western Pacific Railroad and major parts of the South Bay Aqueduct from Bethany Forebay to Arroyo Del Valle.

That under way includes the Antelope Valley Dam, also in the Upper Feather River, Oroville Dam itself, the Oroville Powerhouse, the San Luis Dam (jointly U.S.-California), sections of the North San Joaquin division of the California Aqueduct and of the Joint Use Facilities of the San Luis Canal, and additional sections of the South Bay Aqueduct.

The construction marches south toward the Tehachapis. Already pilot tunnels are being drilled along the alignment of the big conduits in those mountains and access roads are under construction. Rights of way are largely in hand for several of the terminal reservoirs, including that at Perris.

The construction of Oroville Dam this fall began the phase of placement of the rock and impervious material in the great embankment. Oro Dam Constructors, the contractor, has put together a most ingenious conveyance system to move the material from the gold dredger tailings downstream of the City of Oroville to the construction site.

This includes specially designed rail cars that are dumped without being uncoupled from the train by a rotor that spins them two at a time over a huge hopper. Under the hopper, a conveyor belt with steel cables for cords loads the fill material and carries it across the river where it is automatically graded and piled. The material again moves out on a system of belts that command the whole site. Tremendous rubber-tired, self-propelled buggies spread it in carefully controlled layers for consolidation and compaction

It is a busy scene here in the neighborhood of the concrete core block that was built during 1963. The Feather River has been turned into Diversion Tunnel No. 1, which was dug through the abutment under the Visitors' Home.

The river flows for four-fifths of a mile through this 35-foot tunnel, out of the way of the embankment placement that now goes on in the old stream bed.

Inside this same mountain abutment, the great powerhouse is being excavated in solid rock. Next spring, the spillway excavation will be started across the canyon.

This show is stage-front on the center for a run from now until Oroville Dam is completed in 1967 and the powerplant begins operating in 1968.

FIFTY-FIFTY CHANCE — Ralph Burrows, left, of 6700 San Miguel ave., Lemon Grove, and State Humane Officer Milo Munger come to the rescue of a horse reported near death from starvation. When the horse was found Friday a veterinarian said it had less than a 50-50 chance to live. Early this week the horses chances were reported to be a little better than 50-50. Munger said the case is being studied by the district attorney's office. He said the horse belongs to Larry Sazzoni of 3115 Chateau Way, Lemon Grove.
